In the 1830s the New South Wales Principal Superintendent of Convict's Office published notices in the New South Wales Government Gazette (NSWGG) giving descriptions of convicts who were at large after absconding from their employer's custody. The text in 1832 declared that:

'The undermentioned Prisoners having absconded from the Individuals and Employments set against their Names respectively, and some of them being at large with stolen Certificates, and Tickets of Leave, all Constables and others are hereby, required and commanded to use their utmost exertions in apprehending and lodging them in safe custody: Any Person harbouring or employing any of the said Absentees, will be prosecuted as the Law directs.'

This was followed by a list of the convicts giving name, number, ship of arrival, occupation, employer, employer's location, and a description including height, colour of hair and eyes, complexion and sometimes marks and tattoos.

Also published was a 'List of runaways apprehended during the past week'. This lists name of convict, ship of arrival and employer from whom absconded or location (but no description). These lists have been used to create this dataset. The data was extracted by Malcolm Sainty, Terry Eakin and Janette Partridge from digitized newspaper images on the National Library of Australia website www.trove.nla.gov.au.
